Mountaineering	Lack of helmets, lack of technical advice about mountaineering
Mountaineering	Lack of water a problem	There is no water on Sneeuberg. Naturally, this must be done in safe and controlled manner which we believe was achieved on Sneeuberg.

Trading Post	Bring back bistro	The strategy and flavour for the 2008 Adventure was different to 2007. 2007 celebrated the centenary of Scouting and Camping HQ had lots of people there and a number of bases. Patrols camped at HQ in 2007 but not in 2008. In 2008 the idea was to get Scouts out in the mountains hiking and on trail camps. The flavour may change in the future but this is not guaranteed.

PATROL GENERAL COMMENT - MADE AT ADVENTURE	ORGANISER'S RESPONSE
Activities should be in late afternoon so we can hike in the morning. Water a big concern. Maps need to be updated and proper instructions given. Distance between bases sometimes extreme. Very friendly staff overall made adventure enjoyable. Chill tent for adult leaders at HQ	Wherever logistically possible bases are not run in the early morning which is prime hiking time. On occasions this was not always possible although certainly desired and further effort in 2010 will go into this.
Add a foefie slide base. Dutch oven base leader would not go find missing patrol member as they were entertaining guests from HQ. Itinerary between Derif and Rock Climbing timing is incorrect - takes longer than one and a half hours. Base Staff at Rock Climbing were rude to patrol when we arrived late, despite medical reasons for being late. Bring back protons	Protons are back on the menu for 2010. We have had a "foefie slide" base virtually every Adventure and decided to give it a break this time.
Backwoods -Took chicken back, not enough time. Lost as what to do. Transport drop-off start point very vague. More individual snacks would have been nice - would have been good to sell fruit at bases. Rations - would have been nice to have a structured menu.	This will be looked at.
Base camp boring, compared to last year. Leopard conservation too far from anything else. More social opportunities needed. More transport needed for more enjoyment. All routes should have water activities. Electronic Staff set the standard for friendliness. Too much milk powder, sugar and bog roll. More activities would be good. More upfront education about bag packing and weights and what to bring and what not to bring. Best route ever. Marked routes on map wanted	The strategy and flavour for the 2008 Adventure was different to 2007. 2007 celebrated the centenary of Scouting and Camping HQ had lots of people there and a number of bases. Patrols camped at HQ in 2007 but not in 2008. In 2008 the idea was to get Scouts out in the mountains hiking and on trail camps. The flavour may change in the future but this is not guaranteed. Upfront education is available from Troop Scouter and reading the Adult Advisor and PL handbooks which are available from these people and on the website at www.scouting.org.za/adventure. A map was available at the start of the Adventure and it was suggested to PL's that they copy the suggested routes on to their maps. Some PL's did this most diligently whereas others didn't. This suggestion will however be considered for 2010. Is part of the adventure of the Adventure not to plan your own route, ask questions, make decisions on the information you are given and then carry them out?
Better drinks needed. More consistent distributions of meals - 7 boxes crackers in first box, none in last. Protons. No alternatives were available for our vegetarian member. Quantities were insufficient	Will be looked at. Vegetarians should state whether vegans, lactose intolerant etc, Drinks WILL be looked at.
Bit better organisation on transport and hike distances. Was enjoyed. Bring back protons. Too much milk powder and sugar and other useless items. There is no sodium in Amilla - therefore useless. In manual put strepsils and anthesan in patrol first aid kit. Not adequate transport. Cracker breads are not filling or nutritious - use protons. Brief staff as staff make the base	Protons are back on the menu for 2010. 1st Aid kit contents will be reviewed for 2010.
Crystal pools to Algeria unreasonable for 1 day. Lack of water at Wolfberg needs to be addressed. Toilets at bases need to be better maintained. Generally a very well organised event. Route good, itinerary good. Need fresh fruit and vegetables at some bases	Crystal Pool to Algeria is quite doable in half a day ☺. Doing Electronics in the afternoon and setting off for Cederhoutstasie on the same day is indeed tough. Bear in mind that this was the Xtreme route. The Wolfberg ridge was tough and the use of this route is under review for 2010.

Drop off boxes must be better planned. Did not have enough time on the last day. Book says fresh meal at water activities - did not receive any. Beginning of trail from Leopard conservations up to Cracks., not clearly marked. Electronics - difficult to cross river without entering private campsite. Bustrip - dropped off at wrong location. Food - not enough protein - replace meat with beans	The Wolfberg ridge was tough and the use of this route is under review for 2010.
Excellent Cederberg.
Food - Oats very impractical, Weetbix too bulky, not protons, peanut butter or pudding, soya is gross, possible variation. Too much toilet paper, powdered milk and sponges. ..South Peaks - Regulation in base / hike distances more regular. Pizza - Ticks in the only shade, so many mosquitoes, really loud Death Metal when we were trying to sleep, not enough sleeping places. Loved the buffs.	Thanks. Will be looked at.
Food - please vary flavours, too much milk. Bring Protons back. Amila is useless. Trails - lack of water. Bases - Need to be in better locations. Some bases need a full day, some bases have no good camping. Walk to leopard not worth the base	Protons are back on the menu for 2010.
Great adventure, excellent bases, staff friendly, will be back 2010
Great fun, thanks. We'll be back
Handicap was moved and not well advertised.
Having an extreme option is good. Emergency call centre required. Juice - not good, does not hydrate. Base staff swearing.	We do not have the facilities and funds to set up a call centre. In case of an emergency, two people hike with their full kit to the nearest road and make contact with Camping HQ who will take the incident further.
Itinerary was overloaded - not enough time spent at bases to complete activities and socialise. Hiking twice in one day is not fun when it shortens our base times. There is not clear, easy route which sets back less abled teams especially girls and slow teams. Cederberg should be more inclusive for all kinds of scouts and hikers. Leopard conservation to Dutch oven was too long to do 22 kilometers in one afternoon. Adult advisor beating their own team and others, not in the light of scouting and put a damper on the adventure	Networking and socialising is a bonus. The Adventure is about adventure, getting out there, hiking "doing" bases and trail camps. The Adventure is geared for an above average fitness level in South African teenagers and is set to be a challenge. There are many girls who are just as fit and capable as boys and it is to these girls that we cater.
More specific itinerary ie. We didn't know that we had to bring our packs to climbing. More water activities in South Peaks. Less canned goods. More friendly base staff - especially HQ staff. Bring back protons. Organise transport better. Have activities handy for Republic of the sick	You had the option of leaving your packs at the Square Rock as per the note contained in the brown envelope that was handed to the Patrol Leader at the start of the Adventure. Patrols were instructed as follows "Packs can be left at the Square Rock before coming up to the Vlakte but water, hats, jackets/windcheaters, food and sunscreen need to be carried up". Protons are back on the menu for 2010. Sick Adventurers will be handled differently in 2010 and this aspect is under review.
Necessary transport arrangements should be made ie enough seating so that patrols arrive at their destination on time. Itineraries need to be more specific as some of the information is very brief/ambiguous eg Taaibosch Kraal is a farmhouse. whilst talking to staff member what was meant was Taaibosch Kraal river.	The routes to be taken were available at the start of the Adventure and PL's had the opportunity to copy the routes on to their own map. This aspect is under consideration for the 2010 Adventure. Transport in the Cederberg mountains is limited to one company as no other company will allow their vehicles to drive on the bad roads. This company has a limited number of vehicles, so it is sometimes a bit full but there should have been a seat for every passenger if they kept their packs on their laps. Unfortunately there is no alternative at this stage.

Need access to Maalgat. Need Protons. Base order not logical	Access to Maalgat is prohibited by the landowner (due to poor behaviour by Scouts at a previous Adventure). Protons are back on the menu for 2010.
No motivation to hike back to HQ
No Protons - Jerred (mountaineering) thanks. Route planning - too long - Crystal pool to Algeria by 1pm impossible. .10 boys doing excersise equals more food, because doing hard walking Base first aid great. John at pizza helped with serious decision. Sick people, once better, must be transported to their patrols and not used for manual labour	Protons are back on the menu for 2010. Crystal Pool to Algeria is quite doable in half a day ☺. Doing Electronics in the afternoon and setting off for Cederhoutstasie on the same day is indeed tough. Bear in mind that this was the Xtreme route.
Pizza staff shot sheep with air rifles and made bangs. Sleeping at pizza was right on top of the toilets. Transport was shocking, we spent 9 hours waiting for transport out of 3 trips. Northern Regions sang crude, sexual songs at camp and in the bus. Too much milk and sugar, not pudding. Use overlanders instead of busses.At Cutch Oven they would not silk screen one members shirt because it was slightly late.	The Pizza base is under review for 2010. We would love to use more overlanders, but they cost +- R 45 000.00 each, for 10 days. The bad behaviour is noted.
Protons needed	Protons are back on the menu for 2010.
Protons please. Route was good, scheduling is a bit messed up ie hiking in the heat of the day. Pressured schedule	Protons are back on the menu for 2010.
Rations - Too much eggs, muesli and milk powder and no Protons :-(. Trails - Staff not well informed and gave poor instructions. Markings poor or non-existent, even wrong. Road from handicapped to sailing. Good organization, nice variety and thoroughly enjoyed. Thank you very much and the vaolunteers deserve special mentioning	Protons are back on the menu for 2010.
Rock Climbing - bad location for food pick up. Food organisation - vegetarians catering. Transport - more efficient, stick to times. Itinerary - water source info would be cool. Last days programme published. Activities and transport clashed.
Route from Wolfberg Cracks to Leopard conservation unclear and was out of character with the rest of the Adventure. Ranger not helpful and misleading at times. Mountaineering staff outstanding. Pizza base disappointing and out of character with scouting	The Cracks down to Leopard Conservation is under review for 2010. Part of the excitement and adventure of the Adventure is to walk a route like that. Be a pioneer, skillful map reader and enjoy the challenge (?).
Settlers base - there was no separate accommodation for adult scouters, so I had to share room with scouts. Food - we weren't sure what food was for when and when we were going to receive rations. Route - From sailing to Dwarsrivier was bundu-bashing over fences, not sure if it was private property and no markers to be seen. Not being able to go to Maalgat was a disappointment.	The route marked on the map, and available to PL's at the start of the adventure, was the one to take from Sailing to Dwarsrivier North. Bundu bashing is part of the fun, skill, challenge and adventure of the Adventure. The route is nevertheless under review for 2010.
Thank you for improving the toilets. Food on final night was brilliant. Excellent adventure, will be back again

Thank you to all staff. The best of all staff. Walk difficult. Food not in backpack - at the base. .More rice and chicken but fast food not used.
The Cederberg is a great adventure. A time which everyone will remember as a pinnacle time of their scouting career. Greatly appreciate all efforts
The Cederberg rocks, very well run and Thank You. More emphasis should be placed on looking for sponsors as the price is getting far too high. The challenge at the extreme route made it more enjoyable, more hiking definitely makes the experience more fun and worthwhile. The experience should be tough as this is what the Cederberg is all about. The standards should not be dropped because of complaints and the difficulty of the Adventure should be preserved	The Adventure organisers are tasked with running the Adventure and ensuring it comes out in the black. The organisers do not have the capacity to delve into sponsorship deals. Many attempts where made in the past, prospects raised only to all fall flat. The fee is therefore set accordingly. It is up to Provinces, Districts, Groups and Troops to find sponsorship.
The distance and level of hiking required to get to handicapped awareness was not worth it. The map and directions to handicapped awareness could have been better. There should be bases at HQ like 2007. All the bases were missing the little things e.g pancakes, little gifts. Injured member was refused help	The strategy and flavour for the 2008 Adventure was different to 2007. 2007 celebrated the centenary of Scouting and Camping HQ had lots of people there and a number of bases. Patrols camped at HQ in 2007 but not in 2008. In 2008 the idea was to get Scouts out in the mountains hiking and on trail camps. The flavour may change in the future but this is not guaranteed. Bases are not expected to give gifts. If this is indeed done then it is a bonus. No injured member who is truly injured can be expected to hike. The circumstances of this case should be explained in detail to the base leader. If no satisfactory answer can be sought from the base leader or HQ then request that you speak to the Adventure organiser. It is sometimes very difficult to separate chancers and lazy scouts from genuine cases of injury. This is in no way suggesting that this was not a genuine case. The issue of injured scouts and how they are to be handled is under review for 2010. It is envisaged that an upfront policy will be made known to all Scouts and base staff before the Adventure in 2010.
The route without water was stupid. Walk your routes with a pack yourselves before you give them to us. Not fair that sick people never got back to their patrols even though they asked. Baggage collection was poorly run. Cederberg was as usual an overall blast. Appreciate good planning and friendly staff.	The aspect of sick people is under review for 2010. If a sick person recovered and it was logistically possible to get that person back to his patrol, then this would/should have been done. Unfortunately the Adventure cannot incur extra cost to effect this and that person might need to wait for a few days before getting back to his Patrol. A lot of the injuries were caused by blisters. If treated in the proper manner during the hike, hikers would not be required to stay at HQ. Merthiolate will be sourced for 2010.
Times allowed for the long treks were not enough for a patrol of 10, particularly Crystal Pool from Dutch Oven. From those that experienced the previous Cederberg, the standard of adventure organisation has decreased ie Maps and itineraries.	Crystal Pool to Dutch Oven was indeed a long day and this is under review for 2010. Bear in mind that the stratgey of the Adventure was to get Scouts out in the mountains, hiking and on trail camps. The itineraries reflected this strategy and flavour which may change in the future but not necessarily so for 2010. PL's needed to be sufficiently aware and responsible to review their routes and mark the route on to their map. This is as opposed to the spoon fed method with reduced challenge (?).

Transport on first day was too late - despite delay. Groups who have furthest start off point must be dropped first so they can hike in light. Hikes should not be planned to be done in midday heat. Bases should follow a logical path - no backtracking to get back. Crystal Pool to Dutch oven is too long for one day. Rations given out more often. Protons required	Crystal Pool to Dutch Oven was indeed a long day and this is under review for 2010. Protons are back on the menu for 2010. Hiking distances were taken into account when organising the first days transport but vehicles were limited.
Unfair element towards international and local patrols. Balance distances for each day. Not enough interaction with other patrols. More fresh food bases - fresh fruit and vegetables. More showers even if it is a bucket with holes. Got south peak right, but space days out	The suggestion that there was unfairness is not particularly well received 😊. Bear in mind that Patrols who did not stick to their itinerary most definitely completed a reduced set of bases. It is not always possible to balance distances covered each day because of logistical reasons being, locality, permission and suitability of the site for a base.
Updated map with bases and routes marked correctly. Base leader must have correct info on the next leg of the route. Itinerary must be consistent and clear on departure and arrival times - base starting times, etc. Overlander drive was incredibly reckless. Appreciated base leaders and rangers going the extra mile, everybody was friendly and helpful - in future be careful of sexist remarks by base leaders. An awesome experience, thank you very much CT Shuttle from airport to Sea Scout base not roadworthy. Food provided at NQ was appreciated but could have been provided in bulk, plastic packaging - large waste and not eco-friendly.	Consideration will be given in 2010 as how to handle conveying the routes to Patrols in a better manner. Bear in mind that the routes were available at the start of the 2008 Adventure when all PL's had the opportunity to transpose their route onto their own map from the master map. The airport vehicles were checked for roadworthiness before the Adventure. The overlander complaint is noted.
Water activities on South Peak will be nice.	This is not possible for the South Peaks route if the "no transport" route is stuck to.
Water activities would have been nice.	See above.
