

A Timeline of Scout Organisation in the Western Cape

Updated: 08 October 2009

- 1908 On the 3rd March 1908, South Africa's first Scout Troop (1st Claremont) was formed at Claremont Public School.

The first Scoutmaster of the first Scout Troop in South Africa was George French, who was the headmaster at the Claremont Public School in Cape Town.

- 1909 To ensure some standard Policy, the Imperial Scout Headquarters in London appointed Major J.C. Hanna as the first Commissioner to take charge of the newly registered Cape Colony, with its Headquarters in Cape Town.

- 1910 Viscount Gladstone appointed Chief Scout of South Africa.

Scouting in South Africa developed separately in each province until 1923, although as early as 1910, when the Union government came about, Lord Herbert John Gladstone (1854 to 1930) the first Governor General 1910 to 1914, accepted the office of the first Chief Scout for South Africa at the invitation of the Imperial Headquarters in London.

- 1912 Major JP Edwards takes over as Commissioner, Chairman of the Scoutmasters Association and Executive Officer. (The Cub Edward Shield is later named after Major Edwards in 1918 in his honour.)

Provincial Council formed for Western Cape Scouts and this was affiliated to the Imperial Headquarters in London. Lord Robert Baden-Powell visits Cape Scouting with a rally of 350 Scouts at Rhodes Memorial - this establishes Scouting firmly in the Cape. During BP's visit, he recommends that because the Cape Province is so large, a Chief Scout for the Cape Province be appointed. Sir Frederick de Waal (1853 to 1932) takes up this post until 1926 when the Province is spilt into three Divisions.

Chapman's Peak Drive was the brain child of Sir Frederic de Waal, the first administrator of the Cape Province 1910 to 1925. De Waal Drive in Cape Town was named after him when officially opened in 1922.

- 1914 Viscount Buxton appointed Chief Scout of South Africa.

Sydney Charles Buxton (1853 to 1934) was appointed Governor-General of the Union of South Africa in February 1914 to 1920.

- 1915 Mrs M.L.E. White was the First Cub Master in South Africa to establish the first Cub Pack 7th Cape Town (Gardens) in 1915. Cubing officially started World wide in 1916, thus this makes 7th Cape Town Cub Pack the oldest in the World.
